PROFILE

Educated at the reputable Harris Academy in South-East London, Alfred migrated to England with family as a young boy aged 4. The son of an engineer and real estate businessman who later became a leading political figure for the democratic party in one of the key North Central states of Africa's most populous and prosperous country, Nigeria, Alfred took a keen interest in business studies, choosing to study the subject at all stages of his education. Now an experienced, resourceful, and entrepreneurial human resource operator and diversity champion with over 10+ years' experience in executive recruitment, and executive search, Alfred possesses a deeply technical skillset and experience spanning the human resource function and recruitment in financial services, real estate, the built environment, including the management of contingent requisitions, diversity and inclusion, improvements to candidate experience, systems administration, data governance, compliance, and internal audit. Alfred is a valuable team player, and a specialist, with a pronounced transformational, collaborative, and participative leadership approach, he is currently seeking a doctoral training opportunity within an accredited Business or Management School for entry in 2026.
